

Our institute offers students of the Medical University of Innsbruck the possibility of free screening for MRSA (methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus).

Important notes on the procedure:

- Submit your request for screening to verrechnung-bakteriologie@i-med.ac.at Important: Use your email address of the Medical University for the request and not any private email addresses.

- An employee of our department will contact you and make an appointment with you to take the screening swabs.
Important: In the event of a screening required for a clinical traineeship abroad, please remember to submit your request in good time.

- On the agreed date, please register at the sample collection window of the Bacteriology Department and be sure to take your student ID with you.

- The screening result can be picked up in person at the bacteriology sample collection window 2 days after the swab has been taken. The findings will only be handed over upon presentation of an official photo ID.

General information:

The screening is carried out by means of a nasal and throat swab. The swabs are taken by employees of the institute.

The results can be issued either in German or in English. If you need an English-language report, please be sure to let our staff member know when the swab is taken.
